Confirm Email Sent To Blackberry Handheld...

If you put "" (skip the inside quotations) in the header line of an email you send to a BlackBerry you will get a delivery confirmation when it has been delivered to the BlackBerry.

Of course you can send PIN message to a BlackBerry as well which is an instant way to communicate with other BlackBerry users. They always get a delivery receipt - a second tick appears next to the message. The only downside it that the PIN is the handset ID which will change when you change handset. This means you have to update everyone.

This is easy because there is a handy shortcut to generate the pin in a message. Type "mypin" and it gets replaced with a link that is another BlackBerry user can pin you with directly.
